On behalf of the Academic Editor/s it is our pleasure to inform you that your chapter proposal titled "Aestheticizing the Leaf: Literary, Visual, and Cultural Consumption of Tea in East Asia", has been accepted for inclusion in the book "Tea - From Plant to Beverage".

The Academic Editor/s has included comments, kindly review them:

The text is conceptually strong and well structured. A few points could improve its precision and readability as follows: please clarify the geographical scope. "East Asia" is broad; specify whether the chapter examines China, Japan, Korea, or particular cultural contexts.

Please also define the chronological scope more precisely. "From early modern traditions to contemporary practices" covers a very long period and may need clearer boundaries.

Reduce conceptual repetition. Terms such as "material," "cultural," and "tea" recur frequently.

Clarify "material affordances." This is theoretically appropriate but should be defined if it is a central analytical concept.

Please also consider replacing "it asks how" with "it examines/explores how." This gives the chapter's argument a more assertive academic tone.

The final sentence is somewhat dense. Simplifying it would make the main contribution more immediately apparent.

Reconsider "cultural consumption" in the title. The chapter appears to focus more specifically on materiality, sensory experience, aestheticization, and cultural mediation than on consumption alone.

thank you,

Definitive acceptance will be based on the full chapter review.

Thank you and congratulations,
